

AKWAUGO'S DANCE OF COURAGE

Author:
Dr Gloria Harrison

Akwaugo was a timid marsupial who lived in a small village nestled in the heart of the forest.

She was known for her shyness and often kept to herself, preferring the comfort of her cozy burrow to the bustling activity of the village.

One day, as Akwaugo was foraging for berries,

she heard the sound of hooves approaching.
Startled, she quickly scurried behind a nearby
bush, her heart racing.

The sound belonged to a magnificent white horse,
and atop it sat a handsome young prince.

The prince's eyes scanned the forest, and akwaugo couldn't help but peek out from her hiding spot.

Their eyes met, and akwaugo felt a strange fluttering in her chest. The prince smiled warmly and dismounted his horse, slowly approaching the bush where akwaugo was hiding.

"Hello there," the prince said in a gentle voice. "
I didn't mean to startle you.

I'm just out for a ride and got a bit lost.
Would you be so kind as to point me in the right direction?"

Akwaugo mouth felt dry, and she struggled to find her voice. Slowly, she emerged from the bush, her eyes downcast.

"Um, the village is just down that path," she said, gesturing with a trembling paw.

The prince's smile widened, and he took a step closer.

"Thank you, my dear. I'm Prince Ethan, and I'm delighted to make your acquaintance. What's your name?"

"I-I'm Akwaugo," she stammered, her cheeks flushing with embarrassment.

"Akwaugo," the prince repeated, savoring the name.
"It's a pleasure to meet you. I don't believe I've seen you around the village before. Are you new here?"

Akwaugo shook her head, her gaze still fixed on the ground. "No, I've lived here my whole life. I'm just... not very good at talking to others."

The prince chuckled softly. "Well, I'm glad I had the chance to meet you today, Akwaugo. Perhaps we'll see each other again sometime."

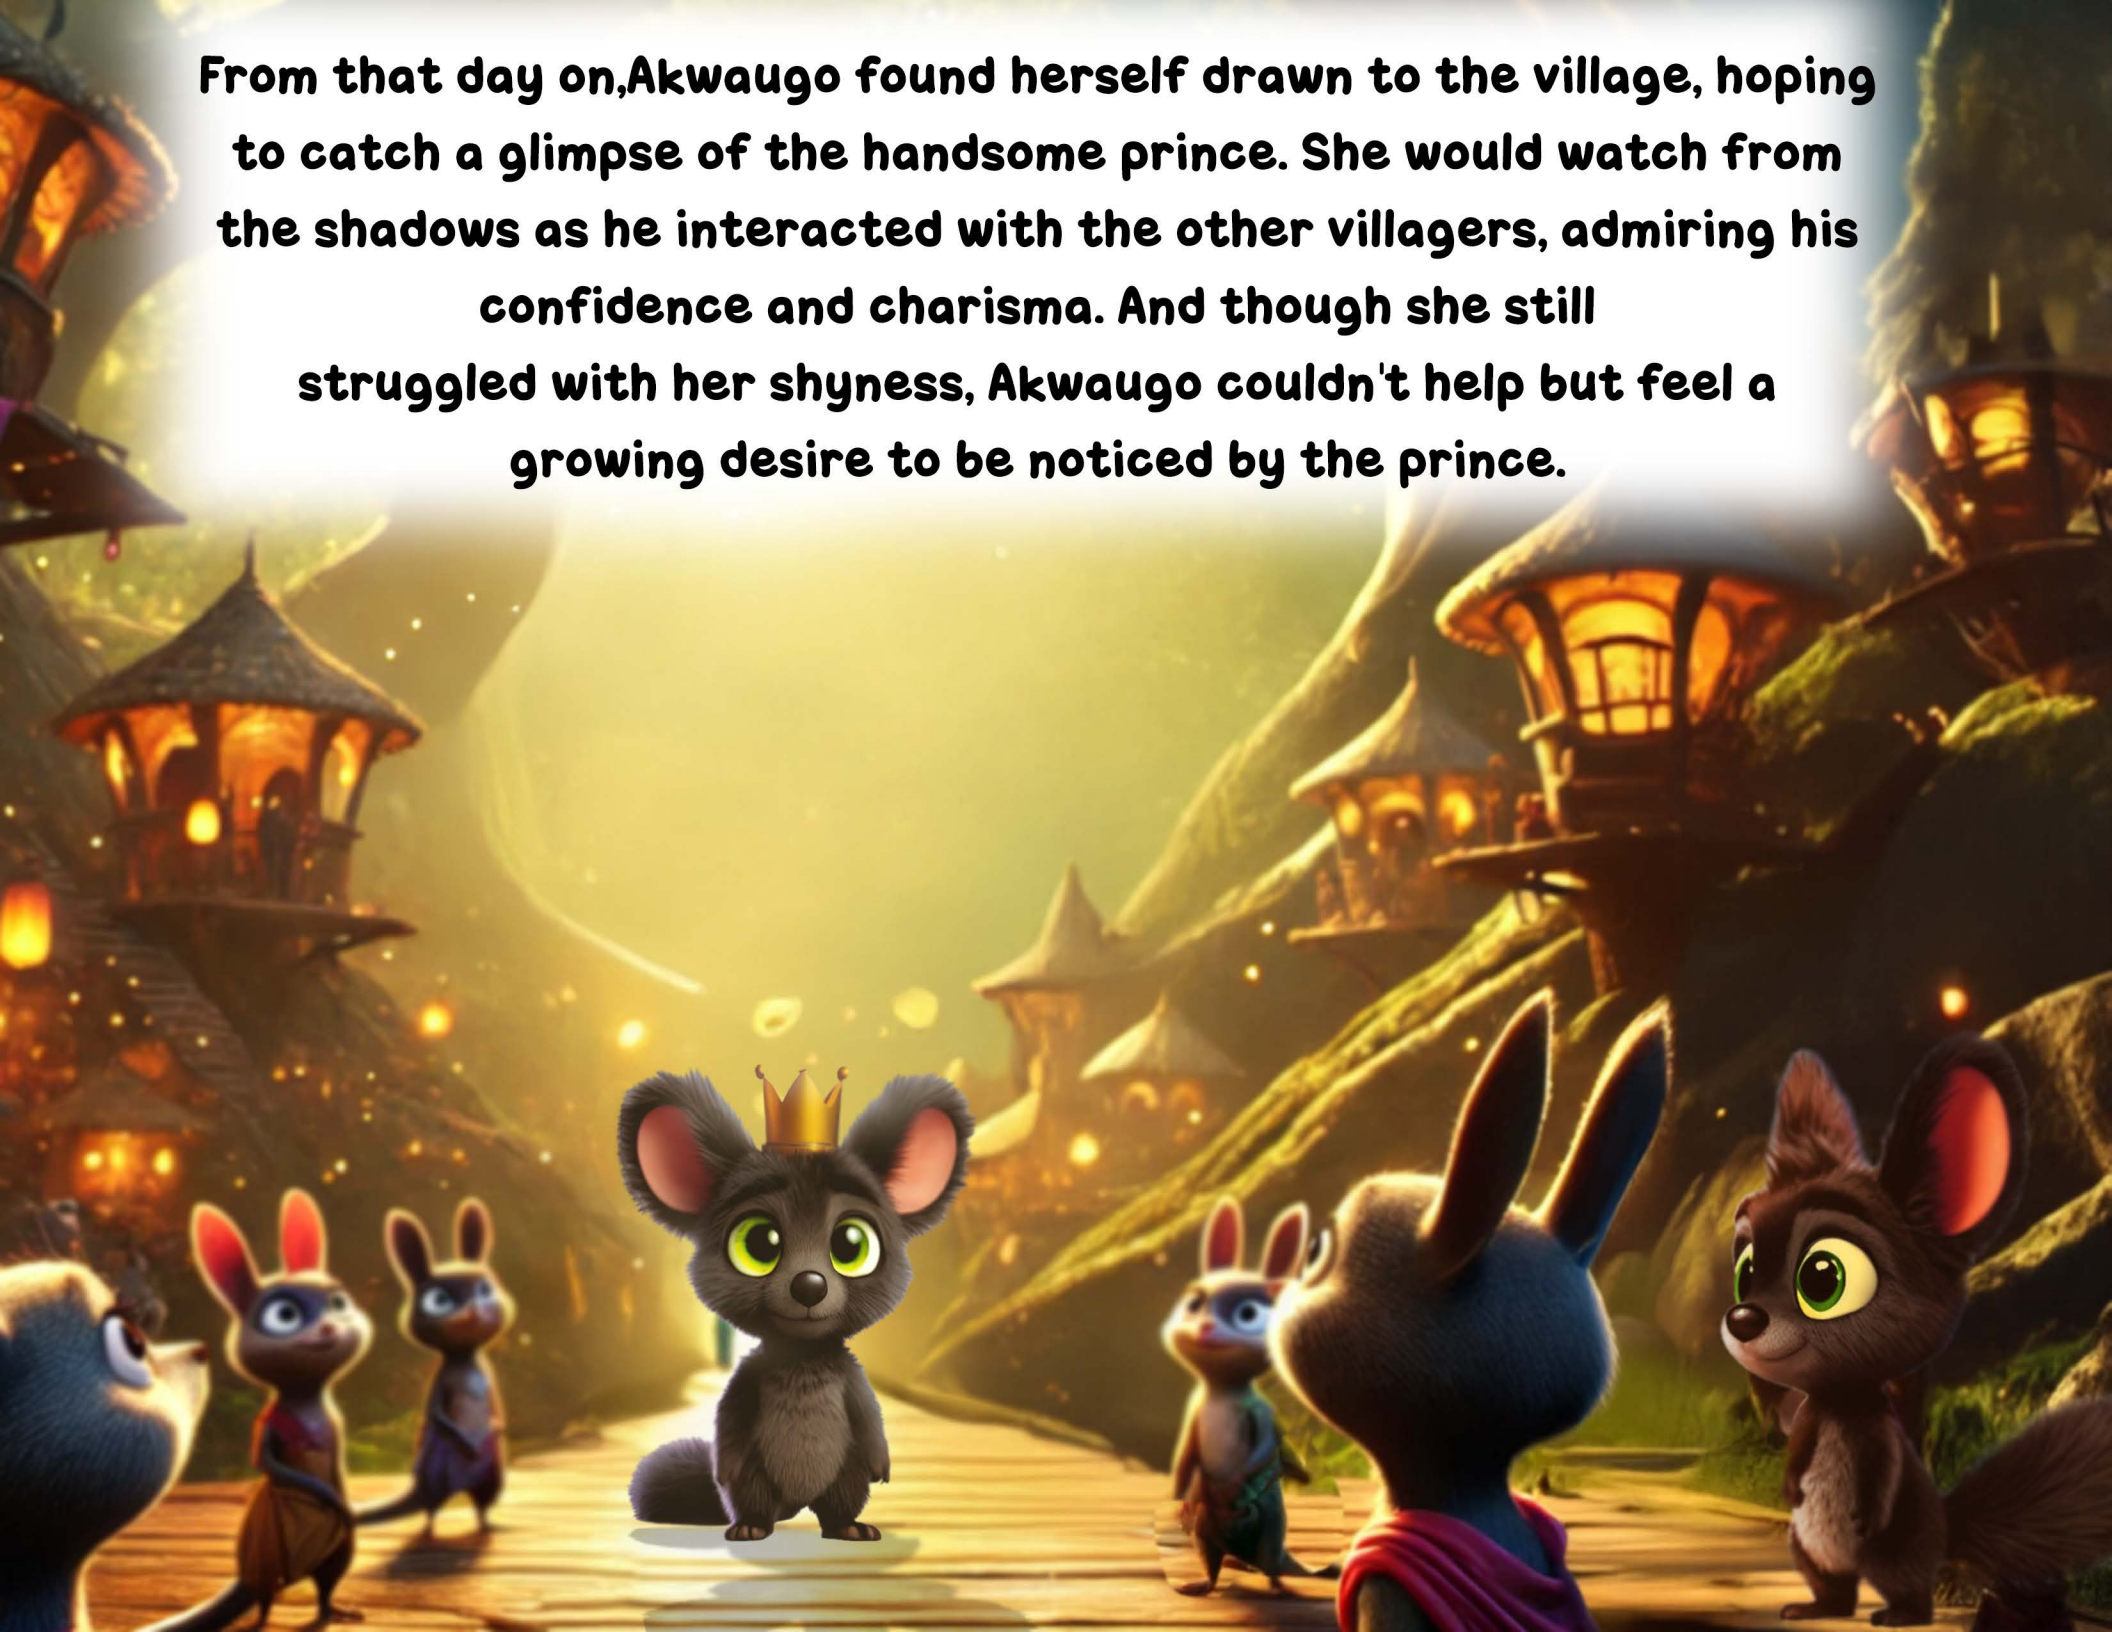

With a final nod, the prince remounted his horse and continued on his way, leaving Akwaugo standing there, her heart still pounding. She could not believe she had actually spoken to the prince, and she found herself longing to see him again.

As Eri made her way back to her burrow, she couldn't help but replay the encounter in her mind

From that day on, Akwaugo found herself drawn to the village, hoping to catch a glimpse of the handsome prince. She would watch from the shadows as he interacted with the other villagers, admiring his confidence and charisma. And though she still struggled with her shyness, Akwaugo couldn't help but feel a growing desire to be noticed by the prince.

Little did she know, her chance to shine was just around the corner.